Dear Cllr Goodman

Taste and Decency

Thank you for your further letter. I did not see the research to which you refer but enclose a clipping from Broadcast magazine just two years previously which reports research reaching exactly the opposite conclusion: that 75% are opposed to European standards.

I imagine that this indicates the limitations of research rather than that there has been a complete change of attitude in so short a time and most research that I am aware of suggests that there are few grounds for a change of policy. But we do recognize that situations change and that opinions can alter as a result and we will continue to keep the issue under review.

Yours sincerely
